

Axonic releases Lookeen Free - a desktop search tool for Windows®

A free, fully featured desktop search tool provides fast and efficient search of an unlimited number of files on the main drive

KARLSRUHE, Germany - 9th April 2015 - Following the successful release of Lookeen Desktop Search in March of this year, Axonic has developed a free version of the software for home use. Lookeen Free allows casual users to experience the same advanced search features developed for Lookeen Desktop Search. Lookeen Free provides professional search functionality for an unlimited number of files on all local Windows drives.

Giving Back

Since its release in January 2008, more than 25,000 business professionals in over 100 countries have purchased Lookeen. Features developed for the latest version of the professional Lookeen software are now an integral part of Lookeen Free – the same powerful search capabilities of Lookeen Desktop Search are integrated into the free version.

"We want to thank the search community for the great support they've given us over the years by giving something back. A great number of our ideas come from user feedback, and we'd like to encourage more feedback to help push Lookeen further" said CEO Martin Welker. "That's why we haven't diluted Lookeen Free's performance or limited the number of files you can search with it – we are providing the same functionality as the professional Lookeen Desktop Search editions."

The cure for modern information overload

Information overload is not isolated to the workplace - it is not uncommon for people to work with an overwhelming amount of data at home, as well as at the office. In this information age, people face the same issues with data storage, search and critical decision making that traditionally plagued only businesses.

Lookeen Free is intended for all Windows® users who want a better alternative to the native Windows Search, or those that already use professional Lookeen software on their work PC, but want the same sophisticated search capabilities at home too.
